EPIDEMIC SPREADS

INFLUENZA CONDITIONS AGAIN BECOME SERIOUS

MORE CASES REPORTED

It May Become Necessary to Quarantine Against Towns on East Eide. Situation Serious at Parnell.

The influenza epidemic in Maryville is gaining, according to Dr. F. M. Ryan city physician, who said today that a number of new cases had been reported and placed under quarantine since yesterday noon. There are now over twenty cases under quarantine and Dr. Ryan believes that more drastic measures than are now in force may be necessary in order to prevent a further spread.

One reason for the spread is attributed to the fact that several towns on the east side of the county are not observing the regulations and in Parnell, Conception, Clyde and one or two other towns no quarantine is being observed and schools and churches have remained open, with public funerals being held in the churches in these towns. Dr. Ryan reports a constant stream of automobiles going into Parnell carrying friends of patients who are sick with the disease. The constant travel from town to town throughout the county is aiding largely in its spread, he said, and unless a stricter observance of prevention rules are observed it may be necessary for the state and county authorities to take a hand. At Parnell the epidemic is worse than at any other place in the county, with many serious cases reported.

Complaint was made to the city physician this morning that more than twenty persons were permitted to gather in the pool halls and unless the proprietors will agree to observe the order regulating the number it may be necessary to close all places of this kind. Proprietors of stores, where numbers of people are found at certain hours, shopping, will be asked to see that not more than twenty persons are permitted to gather at one time.

"I am afraid the situation is getting worse," said Dr. Ryan this morning, "for we are now having more cases reported than we are releasing from quarantine, showing that the epidemic is gaining."

"Now is the time to observe every possible precaution," said Dr. Ryan, "and it may be necessary to place a quarantine on the towns as well as on the homes where there are cases."

Members, however, will be given the privilege of voting for any person of their choice by writing in the name on the printed ballot which will be furnished.

All county chapters in Missouri, it is announced, will follow this plan of electing officers.

PLAN FOR NEXT LOAN

TREASURY ALREADY PREPARING FOR FIFTH CAMPAIGN

NEXT MARCH OR APRIL

Issue Probably Will Be Floated in the Spring Although Date and the Amount Not Determined.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Long before the fourth liberty loan figures have been counted up, or the honor flags have been entirely distributed, or the money paid in, preparations have been started at the treasury for the fifth liberty loan.

The date has not been determined nor the amount, nor any other features. The only certain knowledge is that that there will be another and it probably will come in the spring of 1919—in March or April. Whether present German maneuvers for peace are successful or not, the government by that time will need more billions to pay the war costs which can decrease only gradually, even if cessation of military effort should come. Within a few months, the treasury will again begin issuing new certificates of indebtedness as a means of financing itself, and by next spring the accumulated billions of these must be redeemed out of proceeds from sale of more bonds.

So with this situation in mind, the loan organization of the treasury today had turned its attention to campaign plans for the next loan. Two features have been given study this far in advance—publicity and campaign methods, both closely connected.

As for publicity, it is probable that there will be a fifth liberty loan honor flag, honor buttons for subscribers, window cards for the homes of the bond buyers, percentage stickers, and art posters. It has been suggested that the honor flag, instead of bearing five bars, might carry the Roman "V" standing not only for "five" but also for "victory." Applications for the manufacture of the articles have been received.

As for campaign methods, one feature of the fourth loan has strongly impressed national managers—the success of the communities which organized systematic house-to-house canvassing, with salesmanship responsible to the local committee homes assigned to them, with individuals and businesses rated at their probable purchasing power in advance with a minimum "hurrah" spirit and a maximum of calm determination. It is highly probable that these methods will be recommended to cities and towns in the fifth campaign.

Moving picture theaters also will be counted on to repeat the work for which they were prepared in the fourth loan, but which the closing of theaters on account of influenza largely prevented their accomplishing. They will be asked to make scenarios with the leading actors of the profession, driving home the lesson of bond buying and to show these to millions of prospective bond buyers.

BULLETIN.

Paris, Oct. 24.—Americans on the Meuse front have captured Bantheville and many prisoners. Much material was also taken and satisfactory progress is being made. The Germans were taken completely by surprise. The attack was carried by strong forces.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Paris, Oct. 24.—The Americans attacked today northeast of Grandpre and are pushing ahead. The Germans are using the cream of their army in an effort to check the American advance. It is reported the Germans have begun to evacuate Cleryle Grand, thirteen miles northeast of Grandpre. The weather today is misty. The French forced a crossing on the Oise canal east of Grandfarly.

On the Serbian front the Serbian successes continue unbroken. The French steadily extended their gains along the Serre river, northeast of Laon, but are meeting with obstinate resistance.

The British have advanced twenty-two miles east of Douai and are almost in Conde.

London, Oct. 24.—More than six thousand prisoners have been taken in the new British smash. The troops today are fighting over a front of 25 miles. The Germans attempted to concentrate large forces in Boisdormail and northwards but the British turned their artillery against the roadway, smashing the transports. The German losses are heavy. Many Alsatians are among the prisoners taken. Denay and other towns which the Germans are shelling are filled with civilians, most of them women and children.

London, Oct. 24.—Sweeping ahead in a new assault begun yesterday morning east, southeast and northeast of Cambrai, the British made marked progress, capturing a number of villages from the Germans, the war office announced today. The attack was renewed this morning on the whole front between the Scheldt river and the Sambre-el-Oise canal. The Eciallion river was crossed at Beaudignes. Savage fighting is in progress on the front south of Valenciennes. The Germans made determined counter attacks, all of which were repulsed. All of the Raismes wood, part of the ground of the greatest strategic importance, has been cleared of Germans. The Germans have also been driven from Vendiges wood. Beaudignes, Neuville, Salesches, Thun and Thiershuterive have been taken.

Washington, Oct. 24.—American aviators yesterday shot down fifteen enemy airplanes, one observation balloon on both sides of the Meuse, General Pershing reported. Three American balloons were destroyed. Six of our machines are missing.

YELLOW PAINT AND ARREST

Art Speer of Ravenwood, Charged with Defacing Platte Valley Bank. —Believed Personal Grudge.

Charged with defacing property, Arthur Speer of Ravenwood was arrested this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Gabe Purcell at his home. Speer is charged with painting the Platte Valley Bank at Ravenwood last night with yellow paint. The act of vandalism was discovered this morning when Cashier J. S. Casteel went to open the doors. They were bedaubed with yellow, as were the big front windows and the doorways.

Mr. Casteel notified Sheriff Dowden's office and Deputies Gus Romasser and Leo Atherton went to Ravenwood. In their efforts to find a clue to the perpetrator it was learned that Speer had purchased a can of yellow paint yesterday at a local store. Speer was later found and questioned about the matter, being taken to his home, where a partly used can of yellow paint was found. Mr. Casteel later swore to a warrant for his arrest.

The act is alleged to have been due to a personal grudge of Speer against the Casteels, as both men are among the most patriotic citizens of the county, having given liberally to every war activity and having been large subscribers of Liberty Bonds.

J. S. Casteel has been township chairman for Jackson township on the Liberty Loan campaigns. Bloodhounds from St. Joseph arrived in Ravenwood this morning, but from reports from town and apparently failed to track the guilty party.

THISAUTO THIEF DREW A GUN

Ira Stout of Kansas City, Arrested by Leo Atherton, Threatened Fight. His Partner Deserted.

Ira Stout of Kansas City, driving a stolen Buick touring car was arrested at Ravenwood by Deputy Sheriff Leo Atherton. The car was stolen in St. Joseph and Stout was today turned over to the Buchanan county authorities, two deputies sent here returning with Stout at noon. Stout was accompanied by another man and two girls, who told the officer they had run away to be married. The other man deserted his friends and has not yet been arrested. The two girls were brought to Maryville and returned to their homes this morning.

Following the arrest Stout drew a gun on Atherton after the latter had possession of the car, but was quickly disarmed before he had an opportunity to use it. Stout's father came last night from Kansas City and unable to procure his son's release accompanied the officers back to St. Joseph.

ENGLAND IS WITH WILSON

BRITISH PRESS AND PUBLIC READ PRESIDENT'S REPLY TO GERMANY WITH APPROVAL

NEXT MOVE BERLIN'S

LAST WORD HAS BEEN SAID AND IT IS BELIEVED DIPLOMATIC EXCHANGES WILL STOP

DEMANDS A SURRENDER

President Wilson Points Out That a German Ruler Responsible to the People Does Not Exist.

London, Oct. 24.—The British press and public today read President Wilson's reply to Germany with enthusiastic approval.

Washington, Oct. 24.—With the last word to Germany on peace having been said, the United States today again rallied the Allied forces toward winning the war. President Wilson's reply to Germany puts the next move up to Berlin. Diplomats here today believed that diplomatic exchanges were at an end for a time. Some of the congressional leaders, notably Senator Lodge, were inclined today to criticize the President's action in passing the German appeal for an armistice along to the Entente Allies. This criticism, administration leaders said, was unjust. One thing the President's note seems to have cleared up is that from now on the world will find unity for political action by the Allies.

London, Oct. 24."Gigantic peace demonstrations, during which the police fired upon the crowds with machine guns, killing several women, have just taken place in Mannheim, one of the large manufacturing cities in Baden, Germany," said a Hague, dispatch to the Daily Times today. In response to the fire of the police, the demonstrators threw bombs killing some of the officers.

Washington, Oct. 24.—President Wilson has sumbitted the German plea for an armistice and peace to the Allies, and at the same time has informed Berlin that there can be no armistice except upon terms that would make it impossible for Germany to renew hostilities.

While consenting to deal further with the present authorities in Germany, the President has given them this warning:

"If it (the United States) must deal with the military masters and monarchial autocrats of Germany now, or if it is likely to have to deal with them later in regard to the international obligations of the German empire, it must demand not peace negotiations, but surrender. Nothing can be gained by leaving this essential thing unsaid."

SEN. WILFLEY WILL NOT COME

Speaking Date Here Tomorrow Night Has Been Cancelled on Account of Influenza Epidemic.

Senator X. P. Wilfley will not come to Maryville tomorrow night as the meeting has been canceled by County Chairman M. E. Ford on account of the influenza epidemic in this county. Senator Wilfley was scheduled to make a political speech here by the state committee.

The indications at this time are that the influenza ban on public meetings will be kept on another week and this will prevent political meetings being held in this county. Next week is the last week before the election Tuesday, Nov. 5, and this will be the first time in the history of the county that no political speeches by either party were made before the election.

Nodaway and Harrison county have entered a contest to see which county can have the largest number of delegates in attendance at the state convention to be held at Kansas City, Nov. 19-22, as indicated by the following from the Bethany Clipper:

Maryville, Mo., October 15, 1918.

Mr. Frank Holloway,
New Hampton, Mo.

Dear Mr. Holloway—You are hereby challenged to beat Nodaway county in attendance at the State Sunday School Convention to be held at Kansas City, November 19-22, 1918. Hoping to meet you at Kansas City with a large delegation, I remain, Yours for service,

C. ROSEBERRY,
President Nodaway County Sunday School Association.

New Hampton, Mo., Oct. 18, 1918.

Mr. G. B. Roseberry,
Maryville, Mo.

Dear Mr. Roseberry—Harrison county accepts the challenge of Nodaway to have the largest attendance at the State Sunday School Convention at Kansas City, Nov. 19-22, 1918, and believes that the larger delegations each county has at the convention the better it will be for both.

FRANK HOLLOWAY, Pres.

Harrison county is being looked on as setting the pace for the state in S. S. work and we have another opportunity to demonstrate our ability to lead. We can bet Nodaway county through co-operation. We beat them almost three dollars to one in point of finances.

THE WESTERN FRONT AT HOME

Earn and give. For a year the young people of America have been coached in thrift. Instead of the old problem in the arithmetic book, "If Mary's mother gave her three apples, Jane gave her two, and she ate one, how many would she have?" the third grade girl is now sent to the blackboard to solve, "How many Thrift stamps at 25 cents apiece will Mary own at the end of 12 months if she saves 10 cents a week?"

The girl in the grade above her is learning in her arithmetic lesson how many Thrift stamps it takes to buy the yarn for 500 helmets for the soldiers in France. Still farther on the eighth grader is told to figure in terms of War Savings stamps how much it costs to supply a regiment of Uncle Sam's men with shelter tents.

And now the Earn and Give club of the younger girls of the Young Women's Christian association is organized to turn those Thrift lessons into giving. The children of America have been turning in pennies and nickles and pasting a green stamp on their Thrift card. The Earn and Give club can now use some of those cards and War Savings stamps in their campaign among the younger people for the united war fund.

This fall when the war council of the Y. W. C. A. made plans for the 1918 war drive, it included in its program the rule that no young girls under eighteen can do any soliciting, on the streets or otherwise. They can give, but they can only give by earning. Consequently in order to co-ordinate the efforts of the girls in all the districts over the country, the Earn and Give club is enrolling members and has given out an estimate of $5 apiece to be earned for the war fund campaign by the American girls who still count their age in 'teens. Five dollars apiece from the younger girls of the country will mean that the nation as a whole will fill its charitable organizations' war chest.

Some high school girl in New York city is going to earn her $5 by shining her own shoes instead of stopping at the Greek stand on her way to school and by making her own sandwiches for her noon lunch. Out in Iowa the girl who has been spending 15 cents plus war tax for a movie three nights a week is going to draw a line through the movie habit except when there is an especially good bill. More than one girl plans to clean all her own gloves this winter and to salvage all the paper and collections of junk about the house which should be sold to the junk man to be worked over into some productive industry. The girls in their 'teens are going to earn instead of ask others for the money. They are to sacrifice and give in their own names and older women will make the public requests for money elsewhere.

Many of the girls who are waiting to join the Earn and Give club are already Patriotic leaguers, and they have learned several practical lessons in the thrift that will make them effective members of the new club by their conservation of fruits and vegetables. They have canned and pickled. Now when the end of summer brings the beginning of school they will change their thrift into winter thrift and begin saving their $5 for the Y. W. C. A. war fund.

"Wherever You Are Is the Western Front" is the slogan which the Earn and Give club has adopted. Anna, one wiry thirteen-year-old daughter of New York's East side, who was one of the first and youngest members to join the campaign at a New York settlement house, had to have it explained to her that instead of western front meaning fight and fight meaning fists, the western front means work and work means save in order to give.

The girl who joins the Earn and Give club will discover that in conjunction with her working and saving in order that her club will furnish its quota of the money that is going to help the girls like herself in France and Belgium, she will also find numerous ways in the community to help the war that she had never dreamed of. She will see that all the fruit pits and stones that can be saved from her own dining table and from those of her neighbors, are dropped into the little red barrel at the corner, in order that the carbon which the seeds contain can be used in making charcoal for the American soldiers' gas masks. She will save all the tin foil that she sees for the Red Cross. She will help collect clothing for the French and Belgium orphans and perhaps send them some of her own.

School girls in India, children from squalid, dingy homes, with absolutely no spending money, gave last year to Belgian and Armenian relief when they themselves were not getting enough to eat. They gave up their meat once a week for the Belgians, though they only had it twice a week themselves, and for the Armenians they set aside the handful of fresh grain that otherwise each girl would have ground in her own little stone mill. Both contributions, from all the girls in one missionary's school, amounted only to $5 a month. "But it was a tremendous sacrifice," their teacher writes, "although a joyous one. It actually meant less bread each day, and once a week a meal of dry bread and water. This was done by 80 girls from the meanest homes in the world—children between the ages of five and fifteen."

Four hundred thousand girls in 47 states have become Patriotic Leaguers since America declared war. If as many school girls and working girls from all classes pledge to earn and give, the united war fund campaigners will have $2,000,000 of their $170,500,000.

NOW KNOWS WHAT A LEA IS

Newark Philosopher Learned Something During the Course of an Afternoon's Leisurely Stroll.

The lowing herd wound slowly o'er the lea. The day had been a delightful one for walking and as we swung along in our tweeds and hobnail shoes, a heavy stick in our hand, we drank deep from nature's fount, learning many things. As the mild-eyed cows made their leisurely way down the road and we stood aside to watch them pass, the old lines ran through our mind, vaguely yet with new appropriateness. It never before had occurred to us that we had only the loosest conception of what a lea was, and now we resolved to find out.

Retracing our steps, we followed the lowing herd to a pleasant farmstead with a windmill, a silo, and a large barn inscribed, "Grade A Pasteurized Dairy," where we found the Grade A pasteurized dairyman, by name Ole Yensen. "Are these," we asked, "your Grade A pasteurized cows?" "Sure," said Mr. Yensen; "all bane Holstein stock and not a plugged one in the bunch."

"And where is the lea o'er which they wander?"

Mr. Yensen regarded us with suspicion. Finally he said: "Ay bane have a grade cow killed on a grade crossing once. A man by name Lee he claimed him and das railroad paid him saventy-fi' dollar and Ay get nothing. He bane move away now. Ay don't know where he bane gone and Ay don't care."

We know now what a lea is, but we didn't get it from Yensen.—Newark News.

GIVE CREDIT TO CERVANTES

Immortal Author of "Don Quixote" Responsible for Many of Our Most Famous Sayings.

With the thought of yesterday's epigrammatists in mind, it should be set to record that no one has handed down to this age more homely and immortal sayings than Cervantes. "Don Quixote" is full of them: "Why do you lead on a wild goose chase?" "Sure as a gun;" Within a stone's throw;" "Little said is soonest mended;" "There is no love lost between us;" "Honesty is the best policy;" "All is not gold that glitters;" "A word to the wise is sufficient;" "The pot calls the kettle black;" "Counting your chickens before they are hatched;" "My thoughts ran a-wool gathering," and "As secret as the grave."

One need not look far behind to find "mad as a March hare" also attributed to this prolific Spaniard, but really it was an inspiration of the English poet, John Skelton, who lived in the time of Edward IV. "Set the cart before the horse," as well as "I have other fish to fry," comes from sixteenth century Rabelais, while "A bird in hand is worth two in the bush" goes all the way back to Plutarch.

In "Little Old New York."

If a certain actor had accompanied a party of round-the-towners the other night he would have been either thrilled or embarrassed, says New York Sun. After the theater the party went to the Waldorf roof and saw one of the actor's former wives the center of a gay, laughing party. The next stop was at the Astor roof where there was another former wife of the same actor dining with a handsome young gallant who danced divinely and at the last stop on the Majestic roof was the third former wife giving a dinner to several women and two French army officers. It was hard to tell which was the most beautiful. They all seemed happy. It is reminded of another actor who went to another theater than his own to see a play. He was seated next to a former wife and her husband. They all chatted pleasantly together and later supped together. A strange town—this New York.

American Invented Electric Fan.

Michael Faraday devised the electro-magnetic rotation apparatus in the year 1822. Barlow in 1823 produced the rotation of a star wheel placed in the field of a strong magnet.

These devices were very crude and simple, however, and developed infinitesimal power. Undoubtedly the first electric motor employing magnets wound with many turns of wire, and also comprising a motor which utilized both permanent steel magnets and electro-magnets, was that perfected by Prof. Joseph Henry of Princeton university, in the year 1831. Henry produced reciprocating motion as well as the rotary motion by electro-magnetic means.

Henry's motor, according to Electrical Experimenter, was the forerunner of the present day electric motor.

Philippines Grow Best Hemp.

Hemp may grow all over the world, but the famous Philippine fields are the ones we know best as yet. They have a real monopoly on the crop, as their soil seems to be especially adapted for it. The abaca, as they call it, looks very much like the banana tree. They belong to the same family, but the fruit of the hemp tree is not edible, and the fiber of the banana is not strong enough to use.

The very best quality of hemp grown in the Philippines comes from the fields about Mount Mayon in Luzon. The dust and ashes of this majestic volcano have formed the most perfect soil for its culture, a soil that is found nowhere else in the world.

MOLINE UNIVERSAL TRACTOR

It Solves The Farm Help Problem

Preparedness

The proper preparation for future requirements will make every farmer more money in 1919 than any previous year in the history of our country. To do this he should increase his capabilities of DOING THINGS, and reduce the cost of production.

A Moline Universal Tractor and its equipment requires but one man to operate and does the same work that nine head of sturdy horses will do besides operating all the belt power machinery and costs nothing to keep while not in operation.

This reduces the cost of production one-half over horse drawn implements.

The problem of hired help for 1919 will be a very serious one, and YOU should prepare to farm BETTER, LARGER and more ECONOMICAL in 1919.

"Watch Your Feet"

THE PRESIDENT'S NOTE

Washington, Oct. 24.—The following statement was made last night:

"From the Secretary of State to the charge d'affaires ad interim, in charge of German interests in the United States:

"Department of State, Oct. 23, 1918.

"Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 22nd, transmitting a communication under date of the 20th, from the German government, and to advise you that the President has instructed me to reply thereto as follows:

"'Having received the solemn and explicit assurance of the German government that it unreservedly accepts the terms of peace laid down in his address to the congress of the United States on the 8th of January, 1918, and the principles of settlement enunciated in his subsequent addresses, particularly the address of the 27th of September, and that it desires to discuss the details of their application, and that this wish and purpose emanate, not from those who have hitherto dictated German policy and conducted the present war on Germany's behalf, but from ministers who speak for the majority of the Reichstag and for an overwhelming majority of the German people; and having received also the explicit promise of the present German government that the humane rules of civilized warfare will be observed both on land and sea by the German armed forces, the President of the United States feels that he cannot decline to take up with the governments with which the government of the United States is associated the question of an armistice.

"'He deems it his duty to say again, however, that the only armistice he would feel justified in submitting for consideration would be one which should leave the United States and the powers associated with her in a position to enforce any arrangements that may be entered into and to make a renewal of hostilitiees on the part of Germany impossible. The President has, therefore, transmitted his correspondence with the present German authorities to the governments with which the government of the United States is associated as a belligerent with the suggestion that, if those governments are disposed to effect peace upon the terms and principles indicated, their military advisers and the military advisers of the United States be asked to submit to the governments associated against Germany the necessary terms of such an armistice as will fully protect the intereests of the people involved and insure to the associated governments the unrestricted power to safeguard and enforce the details of the peace to which the German government has agreed, provided they deem such an armistice possible from the military point of view. Should such terms of armistice be suggested, their acceptance by Germany will afford the best concrete evidence of her unequivocal acceptance of the terms and principles of peace from which the whole action proceeds.

"'The President would deem himself lacking in candor did he not point out in the frankest possible terms the reason why extraordinary safeguards must be demanded. Significant and important as the constitutional changes seem to be which are spoken of by the German foreign secretary in his note of the twentieth of October, it does not appear that the principle of a government responsible to the German people has yet been fully worked out, or that any guarantees either exist, or are in contemplation that the alterations of principle and of practice now partially agreed upon will be permanent. However, it does not appear that the heart of the present difficulty has been reached. It may be that future wars have been brought under the control of the German people, but the present war has not been; and it is with the present war that we are dealing. It is evident that the German people have no means of commanding the acquiescense of the military authorities of the empire in the popular will; that the power of the king of Prussia to control the policy of the empire is unimpaired; that the determining initiative still remains with those who have hitherto been the masters of Germany. Feeling that the whole peace of the world depends now on plain speaking and straightforward action, the President deems it his duty to say, withoutt any attempt to soften what may seem harsh words, that the nations of the world do not and cannot trust the word of those who have hitherto been the masters of German policy, and to point out once more that in concluding and attempting to undo the infinite injuries and injustices of this war the government of the United States cannot deal with any but veritable representatives of the German people who have been assured of a genuine constitutional standing as the real rulers of Germany. If it must deal with the military masters and the monarchial autocrats of Germany now, or if it is likely to have to deal with them later in regard to the international obligations of the German empire, it must demand, not peace by negotiations, but surrender. Nothing can be gained by leaving this essential thing unsaid.

"'Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

(Signed) "ROBERT LANSING.

"Mr. Frederick Oederlin.

Is The Quality Right?

THAT'S a vitally important question you'll want to ask yourself when you buy your new Fall Clothes.

In normal times this question didn't bother folks very much. But times have changed. A good many manufactures and retail merchants are lowering quality to meet price demands.

That's really a serious matter from your standpoint. You want your money's worth. No matter how low the price it is impossible to get satisfaction without getting quality.

We have always conducted our store on the idea that to attain the highest degree of success a business must be built like a sky-scraper—"for keeps." And when we started in business here we put into immediate practice our theory that to build "for keeps" requires adhering to the highest quality standards and giving full value—selling thoroughly dependable merchandise at absolutely minimum prices.

Buy your clothes at this store and you will have a feeling of security that both quality and price are right because we sell

RED CROSS ANNUAL MESSAGE IS BEING DELIVERED TODAY

AN ENORMOUS GROWTH

Eight Million Workers Have Produced Goods Valued at $11,000,000,— Membership Holiday Drive.

Washington, Oct. 24.—In every city, town and village throughout the United States a Red Cross chapter is holding its annual meeting this week, selecting its officers and hearing the annual message of the American Red Cross War Council.

This message tells how the Red Cross during the first eighteen months of the war has become "not so much an organization as a great movement, seeking to embody in organized form the spirit of service, the spirit of sacrifice—in short, all that is best and highest in the ideals and aspirations of our country."

On the practical side, the message gives these outstanding facts:

In eighteen months the Red Cross has grown from an organization of 486,194 members, working through 562 chapters, to one with 20,848,103 members, exclusive of 8,000,000 members of the Junior Red Cross, working through 3,854 chapters and 30,000 branches and auxiliaries. One-fourth of the population of the United States now is enrolled in the Red Cross.

Two drives for war funds brought in $291,000,000.

Membership dues and collections amounted to $24,500,000.

Eight million women are engaged in canteen work and the production of knitted goods and hospital supplies.

The value of goods produced by Red Cross workers is $44,000,000.

"During the eighteen months which have elapsed since the United States entered the war," the message says, "the American people will have either paid in or pledged to the American Red Cross, in money or material values, a net total of $325,000,000."

Nearly one-third of a billion has thus been contributed by the people of the United States to this enterprise of mercy.

The message announces that a new membership drive will be undertaken at Christmas time.

"At Christmas time," says Henry P. Davidson, chairman of the War Council, "we shall ask the whole American people to answer the Red Cross Christmas roll call. It will constitute a unique appeal to every man, woman and child in this great land of ours to become enrolled in our army of mercy."

In home service the Red Cross, through its chapters, has added to the comfort of millions of soldiers in 102 camps and cantonments, as well as those traveling on railroad trains or embarking on ships for duty overseas. Its home service, with 40,000 workers, has brought help to upward of 100,000 families of soldiers.

By January next, the message says, the Red Cross will have 5,000 workers in France, as contrasted with 18 workers in June, 1917. Missions have been sent by the Red Cross to France, England, Italy, Belgium, Palestine, Switzerland, Greece, Northern Russia, Eastern Siberia, Denmark, Serbia, and the Island of Madeira.

The various supplies turned out by Red Cross chapters are listed in the report as follows:

490,120 refugee garments.
7,123,621 hospital supplies.
10,786,489 hospital garments.
10,134,501 knitted articles.
192,748,107 surgical dressings.

A total of 221,282,838 articles.

"The veil has already begun to lift," the message concludes. "The defection of Bulgaria, which by the time this message can be read, may have been followed by events still more potentous, may point the way to yet greater Red Cross opportunity and obligation. The cry from Macedonia to come and help will probably prove one of the most appealing messages to which the world has ever listened.

"What the Red Cross may be called upon to do in the further course of the war, or with the coming of victory, peace and reconstruction, it would be idle to attempt to prophesy.

"But your great organization, in very truth 'the mobilized heart and spirit of the whole American people,' has shown itself equal to any call, ready to respond to any emergency."

THE BLUE TRIANGLE AT RUSSIA'S FRONT

The Blue Triangle clubrooms in Petrograd were in half shadow. A few scattered candles flung gleams as persistent and as vague as Russia's hope of liberty. A hundred Russian girls and six young men were guests of the first Young Women's Christian association in all Russia. It was a gala afternoon, for but it was dark because the winter days end at three o'clock and there is a restriction on the use of candles and kerosene as well as of electricity.

The girls were making merry even in the gloom of winter, the twilight and the tragedy of war. One slender white-faced girl with purple-shadowed eyes was merrier than all the rest. Her wit and ringing laugh were contagious.

"Sonya is wonderful tonight," one girl whispered to another as she stirred gently into her tea the one lump of sugar doled out carefully for the party. The Y. W. C. A. secretaries had been saving the sugar for months—putting aside at each meal one of the two lumps served with the coffee in the restaurant, that there might be a bit of sweet for this first party. There was no bread.

"Sonya is not drinking her tea," her pale little adorer went on. "Yet she fainted this morning at the factory and the forewoman said she was hungry."

"We're all hungry," was the monotonous reply. "It wasn't that."

Something stopped the laughter and talk suddenly but the hush that fell in the dusky lit room was as joyous as the noise. One of Russia's greatest singers stood by the piano and lifted up her glorious voice filled with the tears and heartbreak that people at peace call thrills.

They went away early when the music was done—these sad-eyed, half-starved little guests of the Blue Triangle—for danger lurks in the dark of Petrograd streets, robberies and murders—sharp little by-products of a nation's chaos and a world at war.

Sonya lingered after the others were gone. She was standing close by the secretary-hostess' chair when she turned from saying good-night to the last one of the other girls. The laughter had died out of the girl's eyes and the gaiety from her voice.

"Will you give me a note to the factory superintendent," she asked, "telling him I'm attending classes here at night?" She spoke in French, for she knew no English, and the secretary, no Russian.

"Yes, if it will help you." The secretary was glad to give her such a note but she was curious. "Tell me why."

"If he knows the girls are going to night classes he won't put us on the night shift. He will let us work days so we can come. Yesterday I asked for the night shift. Today I have changed my mind."

The secretary wondered. Sonya had not been in any of the classes. Had the bright little party given her an interest in the work of the association? Had the friendliness of the American secretaries reached her? Was it the music that had given her an impetus to study toward something beyond a factory?

"What is it that interests you?" the secretary asked her. "You are not in any of the classes now, are you? What is it you want to take up?"

"This morning I looked out the factory window," and Sonya's voice reminded the secretary of the call of a night bird before a storm. "Down in the courtyard was a crowd and three men were killed. Killed by the police—the bolshevik police, while I stood there and watched. They said they were anarchists. One was my brother. Another was my sweetheart. I came here tonight to forget. But I cannot forget. Always I will remember. I want nothing now but to carry on their work, and to do that I must study and learn—I must learn English and many other things. I want to go in all the classes. If the foreman at the factory knows I do that, he will help. He will let me work days."

In the dark, the hunger, the cold, and the terror of Petrograd, the Blue Triangle is sending out its shining invitation to the bewildered women and young girls of Russia. It is offering a little oasis in the midst of the chaos where they may come and rest and relax, play games, listen to music, study English, French, stenography, bookkeeping, or music, and as one tired girl expressed it, forget for the moment that they are in Petrograd. Most of the girls who gather at the sign of the Blue Triangle are bookkeepers and stenographers, but scattered among them are factory girls, domestics, and girls who never have worked.

"In Petrograd and elsewhere in Russia," says Miss Clarissa Spencer, world secretary of the Y. W. C. A. who started the work in Russia, "girls formerly employed in government offices come to us who have struck against the bolshevists. They're out of jobs. They're hungry. One girl told me she couldn't take gymnasium work. It gave her such an appetite. But they refuse to return to work for the bolshevists."

Miss Helen Ogden, one of the Y. W. C. A. secretaries who was forced to leave Petrograd on account of the German advance, writes home that: "It's like living on the screen of a melodrama to be in Russia. Bullets and shooting are almost as familiar street sounds here as the clang of the street car and the honk of the automobile at home. Here we learn to live and work under frequent shooting and street battles and to flee only when we are told by the authorities that we must."

COMPARES WAR TO BASKET BALL

Says Team Coached by Hindenburg Has No Chance to Score Now.

Halley Ford tells his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ford, just what part he has in the big game.

France, Sept. 26.

Dear Papa and Mama: I guess you can imagine why I have not written for the past two weeks. I hav been taking another box car ride across France. We had a much better trip this time and were not crowded so much. We went through a prettier part of France. Parts of the country are really beautiful but even at that it doesn't beat the U. S. in any way. Only the rasties, canals, roads and climate are very much unlike. We are in the front line trenches and in a certain way imagine he blood could use to advantage. War is nothing more or less than a big game, dangerous at times, but where individual skill plays an important part as well as team work. Of course we haven't much more than warmed up yet but the team coached by Hindenburg has nothing on us at that. We are playing against the man who originated this particular game, made his own rules and started playing before we were on the floor. But he couldn't reach his goal by mass attack, end run or forward pass when we had only a quarter back for protection, so he has little chance now of ever scoring. It is quite exciting. We are not troubled with not knowing what to do with ourselves. To hear our batteries pounding away, sending out peace convincers over for William to read it makes one want to wave their tin hat and give a yell a little stronger than the one we gave when we recovered the ball from K. U. and started down the floor with an open field for a basket that ended the game. We are in reconquered territory and German equipment of all kinds is scattered everywhere. We have a German bed, stove and other articles in our dugout. The boy who uses the bed says he thinks von Hindenburg used it before it was captured. If he did, I must frankly state the old gentleman had fleas. We have lots of fun, everything in war is not so bad as is sometimes painted. Of course when a big shell whistles over our heads we feel just a little out of place but we don't worry about small things like that. There were two captured German guns hauled past the other evening, one a six and one a nine inch. I expect you wonder what part I am playing in the game. I am a regimental switch board operator, two of us run the board and we work in six hour shifts. My time comes between two and eight. I haven't much to do on my morning shift as the lines are not used so much so I write or read anything to keep awake. It is six o'clock. Tell everybody hello. With love,

HALLEY FORD.

HOLT BOYS O. K. IN FRANCE.

Brothers in Active Service, But Never See One Another.

Lieut. A. B. (Bush) Holt and I. E. Holt, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Holt, who are in active service in France, have written their home folks under dates of Sept. 18 and 29.

At the front, Sept. 18.

I have been on the go night and day for the last three weeks and am subject to shell fire nearly all the time. Don't think the Hun has any shell with my signature on it. The only thing I am worried about is gas. They tried to gas us last night and the night before, but they didn't have much success.

You folks must not do any worrying in my behalf, for I am coming out of this o. k. I think it impossible for the Hun to last much longer. The German army has lost its morale, too, and it is also very short of man power, judging from what the prisoners say and from the number of old men that were among them. In this particular sector, they put up practically no resistance and seemed only too glad to throw up their hands and cry "kamerad." I was attached to some tanks and followed the third wave of infantry over the top and got to see what war really was like, and it is really no joke, but the infantry and artillery kept them going so fast that we never did get into any action with the tanks and I have since been relieved from them. We go out again tonight to put up wire entanglements and do trench work. We are due for a rest as we have been over here for six months now and I think they are only waiting for our relief to come up. The stationery on which I am writing this is some German paper that was among the souvenirs I picked up. * * *

France, Sunday, Sept. 29.

* * * Haven't heard from Errett (the brother in France) for about a month. I should be getting a letter soon. Am feeling fine and I hope Errett is able to sleep as well as I do. Tonight is a rainy, dreary evening, cold rain, one of the kind that I would like to get behind the range and go to sleep in the wood box. Have written Errett asking him how he was fixed for clothes and if he needed anything that the government could not furnish. I can outfit him here and myself too, with the little things to make one comfortable that are not furnished. I hope everyone is well at home. The boys are giving them hell today. Have about completed my schooling. Monday is my last day. Don't know how long I will be here, as no orders have arrived yet. Will stop and get ready for the hay. Love to all. BUSH.

WHERE TAXES ARE UNKNOWN

Some Few Places on Earth's Surface That Would Seem Ideal Spots in Which to Locate.

In these days of expensive living what a boon to live in a city without taxes! But there are such places.

There is Orson in Sweden. This municipality has its ordinary city expenses, but it imposes no taxes. Moreover, the local railway is free to every citizen and there is no charge for telephone service, schools, libraries and the like.

All this is due to the wisdom of a former generation, who planted trees on all the available ground, with the result that during the past thirty years the town authorities have sold $5,000,000 worth of young trees and timber, while judicious replantings have provided for a similar income in the future.

Then there is Mourmalon, in the Midi, France. Here not only are there no taxes, but the timbers on the communal lands are sufficient to grant each person a small annuity.

Nearer home we have the island of Innishmurray, off the west coast of Ireland. Here there are no taxes, simply because the fourteen families who live on the island resolutely refuse to pay. In a report to the local government board a rate collector stated that he could not get a boat on the mainland to take him to the island on such an errand as collecting rates.—London Mail.

Tecumseh's Bones Unearthed.

A discovery recalling early Canadian history has been made at a farm in the village of Thamesville, Ont., where bones were dug up which may be those of the Indian Chief Tecumseh, who fell fighting for the British in 1813. With the skeleton were metal military buttons and a pistol of the type then used. There are most trustworthy reports that the chief had been buried close to this place.

Tecumseh, a Shawnee chief, fought with the British during the invasion of Canada by the Americans in 1812 and 1813. A man of great energy and decision, he was entrusted with many minor enterprises, and was finally killed in battle, when his body was treated with great indignity.

The Whisper That Comes in the Night

The Glorious Knowledge Women Gain When a Wonderful Thought Steals Over Them.

Happiness in its most thrilling degree comes to woman with the thought of possessing a baby.

Every woman in the joy of coming motherhood should prepare her system for the unusual strain. Three generations have found the tried and reliable preparation, Mother's Friend, of the greatest help at such a time. By its daily use throughout the period, the skin of the abdomen is made soft and elastic, expanding muscles relax easily when baby arrives, and pain at the crisis is in this way avoided.

The inflammation of breast glands is soothed.

Obtain from your druggist, by all means, this great preparation which science has offered for so many years to expectant mothers.

Write the Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. D, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their helpful and interesting Motherhood Book, and begin the use of Mother's Friend. It is for external use, is absolutely safe and wonderfully effective.

And remember, there is nothing to take the place of MOTHER'S FRIEND.

D. A. R.'s Contribute Big Sums to War Relief.

The Maryville Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution have had a part in the big work being done by the chapters all over the country for war relief. For the six months ending Oct. 1, the Daughters in 28 states contributed $200,000 to the Red Cross, $78,000 to the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., raised $74,850 for the care of French orphans and $25,000 for civilian relief in Tolloloy, France. These figures are embodied in the semi-annual report of the war relief committee. In addition to contributions to these beneficences, the Maryville chapter has purchased Liberty bonds.

WE MUST GO ON WITH WAR

Sir Arthur Yapp, Head of British Y. M. C. A., Says Hun Man Power Is Not as Low as Believed.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 24.—Sir Arthur Yapp, head of the British Y. M. C. A., originator of "The Red Triangle," the world wide insignia of the organization is in St. Louis in the interest of the $170,000,000 War Work Agencies fund. He believes the best answer to the German peace note is to go on with preparations as if the war was expected to last another five years.

He said he believed the German man power was not so low as had been intimated, although their losses have been great. In his opinion, when the Germans are withdrawn to the border they will show considerable fight.

HAWK DESTRUCTIVE TO TREES

Birds' Unvarying Diet of Fish Sooner or Later Causes Death Through Accumulations of Grease.

Random bits of curious knowledge often come the way of persons who live in the summer time close by the ocean's edge. One gets to know, for instance, such things as why hawk nests so often are seen in dead trees. It is not that the hawk, in seeking a home site, by choice picks a dead tree in which to build its nest of twigs and things; on the contrary, it invariably selects a live one. The dead tree is the effect, not the cause of the hawk's preference.

Hawks of the kind considered here live exclusively on fish. Fish are oily, and so it follows that after a few thousand have been dissected and eaten in a nest the tree inhabited by a hawk family becomes discouraged and abandons the struggle.

After hawks have used a lofty bough as a dining room for two or three years a tree becomes so greasy that leaves find it impossible to hold on. The oil slowly makes its way to the roots, covering them and making the absorbing of water from the earth out of the question. Deprived of oxygen, having no leaves through which to breathe it in, and of water, because its roots are greased like a Labor day pig, the tree gets discouraged and gives up the fight.

HOLD SWORD SACRED THING

German Officer Said to Lose Commission if He Should Be Parted From Weapon by Force.

Officers in Germany are supposed to have a feeling almost of sacredness about their swords, and I think, in point of fact, officers in most countries have. I have been told that if any officer loses his sword by force he loses his commission as an officer. I do not vouch for this statement.

I was told about the penalty for losing a sword many years before the war, in Dresden, to excuse an officer whom I saw behave in the most brutal manner. He was on the back platform of an old-fashioned street car which was going very fast. Some man in the street ran and tried to jump on the car, and in taking hold of the rail got hold of the handle of the officer's sword. Without the slightest feeling as to whether the man would be seriously hurt or not, the officer beat and pounded this man's hands until he was forced to let go and drop into the street. But what a German officer does is always considered right, anyway, and no one dares to complain.—Neville Taylor Gherardi (wife of former United States naval attache at Berlin) in Saturday Evening Post.

New Yorker Has Famous Relic.

Enon-Sheroun the Just, sultan of Persia in the days when Omar Khayyam was making vain attempts to sell his verses to the magazines, one day bought an indestructible vase, wonderfully fashioned by a potter of magic powers, for his royal palace at Rhagas.

Along came the Tartars, acting like Prussians, and destroyed Rhagas, making the royal palace look like the Cloth Hall at Ypres. That was in 1221.

The jar of Enon-Sheroun the Just has just been added to the collection of Macdermid Parish-Watson, New York art collector, after existing only in legend and tradition for nearly seven centuries. Two pieces of it were found on the site of the royal palace of Rhagas in 1910, and since then other fragments have been uncovered from time to time, and the last piece was picked up in 1914. The vase is said to have a value of $85,000 to $100,000.

Ship's Coins.

A superstition among seafaring men is that a coin should be placed beneath the mainmast of a newly built ship. The coin should be of gold, though in a pinch silver will do. The coin should bear the date of the year the ship is built and before being placed beneath the mast it is carefully wrapper in cotton. Its resting place is the stepping of the mainmast.

Dealers in coins are aware of this long-continued practice, and the result is that when an old ship is broken up, especially abroad, there is always on hand a company of coin dealers desirous of obtaining the coin. It is said that in this way one collector obtained a specimen of the rare American dollar of the mintage of 1804, which has commanded a high premium for many years.

Immense Indian Food Dishes.

The largest food dishes in the world were recently bought of the Indians of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, for the museum of the American Indian, New York city. These dishes were purchased from a tribe named Kwakiutls, which in English means "Smoke of the World." They are used for special festivals when great numbers of Indians gather to celebrate some religious or ritual festival. The dishes are carved out of wood and soups are brought to a boiling point by dropping hot stones into the food. The carvings represent the clan to which the dish belongs, which in one instance is the "Wolf" and in another the "Eagle" clan.

Sound Notes That Never Vary.

Small splinters of the wood of old Cremona violins, when vibrated with a bow, have been found to give invariably the same note; and that note is always a tone higher when the wood is taken from the belly of the instrument than when it comes from the back.

"Spokes"— and the Swift "Wheel"

What would you consumers think of a wheel without spokes?

What would you think of a man who would take any or all of the spokes out of a wheel to make it run better?

Swift & Company's business of getting fresh meat to you is a wheel, of which the packing plant is only the hub. Retail dealers are the rim—and Swift & Company Branch Houses are the spokes.

The hub wouldn't do the wheel much good and you wouldn't have much use for hub or rim if it weren't for the spokes that fit them all together to make a wheel of it.

Swift & Company Branch Houses are placed, after thorough investigation, in centers where they can be successfully operated and do the most good for the most people at the least possible cost.

Each "spoke" is in charge of a man who knows that he is there to keep you supplied at all times with meat, sweet and fresh; and who knows that if he doesn't do it, his competitor will.

How much good would the hub and the rim of the Swift "wheel" do you if the spokes were done away with?

With Nodaway Boys Serving The Colors

GETS MAIL IN A BUNCH.

Ray O'Grady, up at the Front, Writes Interesting Letter Home.

Thos. R. O'Grady with the 3rd division, A. E. F., in a letter to his sister, Miss Ella O'Grady, dated September 22 writes as follows:

"Our mail came at last, all in a bunch, only thirteen letters for me, written from July 30 to August 20. Of course we are glad to get the letters even in bunches, but would rather they would come oftener. I wrote a letter yesterday, the first one in some weeks, as writing accommodations have been very poor. It has been raining all the time and we have been moving from one place to another, sleeping in the woods. Right now I am sitting in my pup tent and it has been raining all forenoon. But why should I worry about the rain for the harder it rains the better I sleep. The only thing that keeps us from sleeping is the "cooties" and we sit around and sing "every night how they fight over me," but when they make a bayonet charge the singing stops and everybody gets busy "reading" his shirt. Guess you wonder how I spent my birthday. To start the day I got into a woods in the "wee sma' hours" after several hours trip in a hard rain, and after pitching tent, got several hours of nice damp sleep, but that don't even give a soldier a cold. About the time we got into the wood the big guns began to play the "Star Spangled Banner for Fritz and he went in his dugout de luxe and stayed there until some one came along and told him the U. S. A. was in the war. About noon that day we moved up and I ran across several fellows from my old outfit. They were the old band bunch, Tracy Dale, the mail sergeant, and say, it seems like getting back home. We met hundreds of prisoners coming back and they seemed perfectly satisfied. The next day we moved up still farther and I ran across John Mutz, the first fellow from home I've seen over here. John is still fat and healthy looking—and there we were, in a French village held by the Germans for four years. The civilian population up to that time did not know the United States was in the war. I saw the ruins of villages that have been unoccupied for four years. Casualties were so very few that it did not look like a battle field to us. We are about fifteen miles from some front now, I don't know which one, but it doesn't make any difference to me. Those letters you clipped out of the paper written by the boys over here are quite interesting, but what beats me is an artilleryman being up where they stick the bayonets in the Germans or shoot them four or five times. I get up lots closer than they do and that is one of the outdoor sports I have never seen. If they would put us near some good town and pay us off we would be perfectly satisfied. June pay was our last and nearly every one of us is broke. I am not quite broke, but am badly bent—have fifty francs loaned out. My $100 worth of Liberty bonds was paid up in July and was to be delivered to father. Just drew a new gas mask and they are a big improvement over the old one, as they are adjustable to fit the head. This is not a very comfortable writing place so I will quit."

THINKS LIFE PRETTY GOOD

Carl Tarpley Writes to His Parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Tarpley.

France, Sept. 20.

Dear Folks: Received your letters of August 23. Am feeling fine. It is nice and cool and we are having fine weather but lots of rain. Am seeing lots of pretty country, too. Mother, I don't want you to worry about me. May be the censor will permit me to say that our losses are very small. Thousands of chances for us. I suppose you think of my hardships but it isn't half bad. Jack and I will be home before many months. I know you are worried and unstrung but just settle down and get busy and you will get along better. I have learned that much. I do all I can in the army and if things go wrong I think, "Well I can't be bothered, I'll try again." Teh end of the war isn't far off. The world will be sleeping in peace before many months is past or maybe sooner, so have patience, we will be together not long from now. I read a letter that was supposed to have been written by the crown prince to the kaiser. He said "the d—— fool Americans didn't know anything about war. When we fire on them they don't run but took after them. Dad, you know the breast plates you gave us, you send us some for our backs, you told us in your speeches that we could run any army in the world. Send those fool Americans some of those speeches. The boys haven't seen the dear old Rhine for a long time and we are going back * *." There was quite a bunch of stuff but I don't remember any more. I hope Jack gets to come across.

* * * I can smell supper. We have bacon, fried apples, prunes, gravy, light bread and coffee. Not bad for a soldier is it? I could write a whole bunch if I had the time, but the papers put out more than I could write.

Your loving son,
CARL H. TARPLEY.

When Fresh Vegetables are Scarce.

When fall came on and the fresh vegetables from her war garden were no longer available she began to grow worried. She had grown to depend on a delicious salad for the chief dish at her noon luncheon. But by means of her cook books, bulletins and recollection of good things she had prepared, she soon realized that she could continue to serve salads which were not only palatable and nourishing, but patriotic as well.

This is part of the list which she kept for reference so that her family would not grow tired of sameness in her salads:

Flaked fish, celery and mayonnaise.

Cabbage, nuts and boiled dressing.

Beets, salmon and boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Chopped turnips with boiled dressing.

Cold baked beans with chopped onion and boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Cottage cheese with slices of egg and boiled or mayonnaise dressing.

Apples, celery and nuts with mayonnaise.

Combinations of different fruits which have been canned whole.

Potatoes and onions with dressing.

Salmon, onion and mayonnaise.

Prunes stuffed with cream cheese.

Chestnuts, celery and pimentoes with mayonnaise.

Every housekeeper will have many more combinations which she has successfully tried out. Keep a list of them and be sure that they are all war-time salads.

There aren't any boys nowadays in the sense of fellows who haven't begun to take things seriously. The boys are all men in spirit; doing men's work; many are holding down the jobs of the men now fighting in France.

They're learning too, that it's economy to pay enough to get good stuff—clothes or anything else.

We can help any of you young men who are doing the work of the fellows gone to war; we can see that you get clothes that save.

Hart Schaffner & Marx and Cloth Craft make that kind and we sell them because they are that kind the styles are live ones. But they use no unncessary cloth nor make the clothes cost any more. We have the goods.

Noted Missouri "Y" Leader Comes Home to Help in War Fund Drive

WILLIAM H. DANFORTH, PRESIDENT OF MISSOURI SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION, AND WELL KNOWN IN MARYVILLE, WILL HELP TO PUT STATE OVER TOP IN CAMPAIGN

Wm. H. Danforth of St. Louis, president of the Missouri Sunday School Association, and who is remembered in connection with the state convention held last November, is expected daily at the headquarters of the Y. M. C. A. War Council in New York on his way from France to take an active part in the Missouri drive of the United War Work campaign, according to a New York telegram. Danforth went overseas in February for the Y. M. C. A. and officials in Paris were loath to send him back because of the valuable work he has been doing as a divisional director in charge of post exchanges and canteens.

Along the Marne in July, when the German tide was stopped and the big Allied push began, Danforth was one of numerous Y. M. C. A. men who stuck to their posts for hours under heavy fire. He distributed supplies to men cut off from communication with army supply depots and also aided ambulance men in the care of the wounded. He escaped injury and returned to his regular duties without any rest after the German menace had been repulsed.

When Danforth arrived in France he was at once assigned to important work in the chain of post exchanges, which had just been turned over to the Y. M. C. A. by General Pershing. Except for brief intervals, he has continued steadily at the development of that big business. On one occasion, however, there was an urgent call for a chauffeur to drive E. H. Sothoron and Winthrop Ames on a tour of inspection of the entertainment needs of the army, an inspection which resulted in the formation of America's "Over There Theater eLague" to keep at all times 100 American stage stars in France.

Danforth was asked to make the transition from divisional director to chauffeur. He consented, and so well did he perform his new duties that he almost fooled Sothoron and Ames. But one day they asked a few pointed questions and discovered that their suspicions were correct.

"I have noticed," said the actor to the chauffeur, "that you appear extraordinarily unlike the chauffeurs with whom I have come in contact. You are from the States, I take it. What is your name and what is your business at home?"

"Danforth," was the reply. "William H. Danforth. I am from Missouri and am president of the Ralston Purina Mills Company."

"That's a pretty big concern, isn't it?" Sothoron ventured. Can't they find a bigger job for you?"

"The job that has to be done is always the biggest job over here," was Danforth's reply.

Sothoron told the story on his return to America as proof of the spirit of service which the war was spreading among the big men, who had left their business and their families to go overseas to make things comfortable for the American boy. Danforth cannot be spared there, but his record in Missouri is responsible for the call to come home. His committee got $2,200,000 during the last "Y" drive, in which $600,00 had been fixed as the city's quota.

Three meatless days are the rule in Hungary, and the remaining four carry short rations of meat.

A BIT OF HOME WITHIN THE CAMP

A long, low building of frame construction, attractively planned, with wide verandas and a homelike aspect. Outside are hanging the flags—the Stars and Stripes, which must soon be taken in as it is nearly sunset, and another flag bearing a little triangle of blue and the letters Y. W. C. A. It is a fall afternoon and the air is a bit sharp. Through the front windows of the house the woman approaching up the walk can see the cheerful glow of an open fireplace. There is the sound of a piano and some one is singing.

The woman, who is slight and young and tired-looking, puts her heavy suitcase down on the walk and shifts the baby she is carrying to the other arm. She listens a minute, then picks up the luggage and walks bravely up to the front door. Some one has heard her coming and is there to meet her. Some one always is in places like this. The door is thrown open and a kind woman's voice says: "Oh, do come in and rest. Let me take the baby." The baby is passed over and the stranger, worn from a long journey, tired and sad, is given the welcome which only the Y. W. C. A. hostesses know how to give.

She explains that she has come to see John before he leaves for the front. She has been saving her money for traveling expenses, and has come to surprise him. John has never seen the baby, and now maybe he never will, for she has discovered that John has just left on a two days' furlough to surprise her. Before she could get a train back to her home John's furlough will have expired and he will be on his way back to camp. The little mother does not know how to meet the situation and tears of fatigue and disappointment begin to flow.

"Well, that's too bad," says the sympathetic Y. W. C. A. worker. "But cheer up. You can just stay here for a couple of days. We'll send a wire to John at the first place his train stops and tell him to take the next train back. He can enjoy his furlough here."

This is done and the little family has a glorious day of it.

The Young Women's Christian association has established 92 hostess houses of this character for American soldiers and sailors and their families. In this brief bulletin of news lies one of the most potent factors in the winning of this war. Our boys are fighting for their homes. The Y. W. C. A. with its hostess work in this country and in France is helping to keep the ideal of American home life constantly before the men who are protecting it. These men had to go away from their individual homes, but there is a home which follows them—a place where they can go when they are off duty and meet their families and rest. There is a room in every Y. W. C. A. hostess house with a real fireplace in it and a domestic hearth. There are chairs with cushions on them; the china is not of the iron-bound bucket variety necessary in camps; and best of all, the boys say, there are nice women to talk to. No boy in camp would hesitate to ask his mother or sister or the girl he thinks most of to meet him at a Y. W. C. A. house, for he knows that the women she will see there are of the right kind. The very fact that it is known that there is a real, homey place near each camp authorized by the war department and presided over by dignified and refined women, has served very largely to discourage the other type of woman and keep her away from the men she formerly preyed upon.

The Y. W. C. A. houses are not established with any view to marking class lines, however, although many of the hostesses who assist led lives of greatest ease and luxury before the war. Democracy rules at the sign of the little Blue Triangle.

A story is told of a great merchant's wife whose individual fortune mounts to the million mark. This lady is a member of one of the Y. W. C. A. committees, and on one occasion she was helping in the cafeteria of a hostess house at the Great Lakes naval training station. A little shopgirl who had a "day off" from her work in the basement of the great store owned by the Y. W. C. A. worker's husband, and who had come to see her sailor brother, was in a State street hurry for service. She sharply ordered the merchant's wife to "look alive with these forks, girlie."

The lady addressed as "girlie" quite humbly saw to it that the pile of forks was replenished. Then she went over and talked to the girl, helped her to locate her brother and sent her away happy. The shopgirl never knew that she had been talking to her employer's wife.

There are two hostess houses at the Great Lakes station, and it is a wonderful sight to see the crowds of women relatives and friends of the sailors who throng to them on the Wednesday drill afternoons. From 1,000 to 3,000 persons a day are cared for in the cafeterias, and the nurseries are full of sailor babies, whose mothers can leave them there safely while they are on the grounds.

In addition to the hostess house work in this country the Y. W. C. A. has established the famous Hotel Petrograd in Paris as a center for transient women war workers overseas. There are also many foyers or recreation centers in France where girl munitions workers, signal corps girls and others are refreshed and brightened by association with the play leaders of the Y. W. C. A. who have introduced American gymnasium classes into French life.

Since April 1, 1917, the army of the United States has been supplied with 5,377,000 overcoats, 8,069,000 woolen coats, 10,507,000 pairs of woolen breeches and 55,958,000 pairs of woolen socks.

Independence Went Over.

C. F. Sisson and Newt Morgan of Parnell were in Maryville Thursday and stated that the people of Independence township subscribed for $89,600 in bonds during the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign just closing. Their quota was $81,100. Of the total amount, $13,250 was subscribed at the Sheridan bank and Independence township will not get credit for that amount. It is expected that a few more had subscribed since these figures were compiled.

SPOT ON NAPOLEON'S RECORD

Ultimate Failure Dimmed the Glory of Great Soldier's Early Wonderful Successes in the Field.

The military genius of Bonaparte is still a fruitful theme for discussion. In the early part of his career he achieved such successes as made his name a terror to Europe, and gained for him a prestige which a series of continuous and overwhelming defeats in the latter part of his history was unable to destroy. But in the game of war, results alone can form the criterion, and the victories of Marengo, Austerlitz and Wagram can scarcely be admitted in compensation for the blunders of the Russian campaign and the overthrow at Waterloo.

One qualification of a great general was conspicuous in his character, the capacity of recognizing and rewarding merit in whatever position it might be found. Favoritism was almost unknown in his army. He was of a cold-blooded temperament, engrossed exclusively by the master-passion, ambition, and the very cause which kept his moral purity inviolate made him almost insensible to the promptings of love and affection.

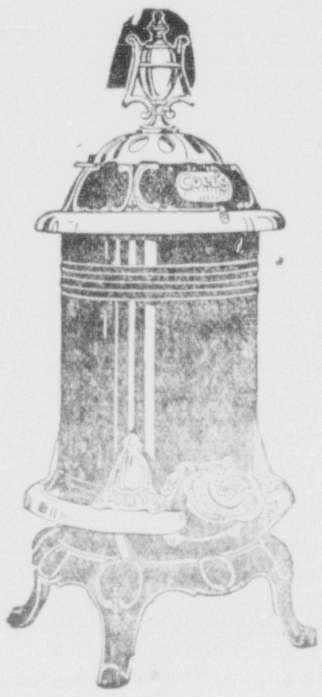
Hardware Will Be STANDARDIZED

Regulations in the iron and steel industry and metal trades are becoming more and more stringent, and nearly everything in hardware will have to be changed to meet the requirements of the government. For instance, there will be but one style and three sizes of oil stoves—but two sizes of scissors—but few styles of butcher knives, and there will be none with brass rivets—no brass will be used where it can be eliminated.

For that reason you should buy such goods now while we have a good supply on hand and while prices are reasonable.



We have a very large assortment of scissors, knives and razors, all of the very best makes — mostly Keen-Kutter, and prices on this line of goods are very much lower than they will be when the present supply is exhausted.

If you are butchering this fall get your knives now while we have the kind you want.

We also have a good assortment of styles and sizes of oil stoves. This is the weather to use them and save other fuel.

You will do well to look to your heating stove needs—and remember that we have the celebrated Cole's Hot Blast wood or coal heaters.

TAKE IT IN TIME.

Just as Scores of Maryville People Have.

Waiting doesn't pay.
If you neglect kidney backache,
Urinary troubles often follow.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney backache, and for other kidney ills.
Maryville citizens endorse them.

Mrs. Hattie Hogue, 121 Hester St., Maryville, says: "For at least five years, I had trouble with my back and kidneys. A dull ache settled across the small of my back and when I tried to bend or lift I got a sharp catch in my back. My kidneys acted irregularly and caused me a lot of annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills gave a very fine benefit at once and continued use brought lasting results. It has been some time now since I have needed such a medicine."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy — get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hogue had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgrs., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

2,000 BOOKS SENT TO SOLDIERS.

Normal and City Librarians Sent Supply to Hoboken for Transport Use.

The books which have been collected at the Normal and city libraries to be sent to the soldiers, were shipped out a few days ago. The total lot included approximately 2,000 books which had been given by people all over the county.

They were held at the libraries until orders came for shipment. These were sent to Hoboken, N. J., and they are given to the boys on the transports to read while going overseas and when the other side is reached, the books are re-boxed and sent to the different camps and hospitals in France and England for the use of the soldiers.

To Our Subscribers.

The Government has placed the newspapers of the country on a war basis—unless certain rules laid down by the Government or its authorized agents are accepted and immediately put into practice by the newspapers the newspaper industry will be excluded from the priority list and consequently would be suspended. For that reason —it is absolutely necessary that we comply with the Government regulations regarding the publishing, printing and distributing of THE DEMOCRAT-FORUM.

To do this we must have the co-operation of our patrons who are asked to read the following extracts from the report of the war committee of newspaper publishers very carefully and follow out the requirements here stated:

No publisher may continue subscriptions after date of expiration, unless subscriptions are renewed and paid for.

No publisher may give free copies of his paper; except for actual service rendered; except to certain organizations specified in the report.

No publisher shall give free copies to advertisers except not more than one copy for checking purposes.

No publisher shall print extra copies for stimulating advertising or subscriptions.

No publisher shall sell his publication at an exceedingly low or nominal subscription price.

No publisher shall sell his publication to anyone below the published price.

No publisher shall offer premiums with his publication except in certain instances and in certain manner so specified.

No newspaper may be established during the period of the war except those for which arrangements had been made and plants purchased previous to the issuing of this order.

A sworn statement will be required for each publisher on November 1 as to how many of these rules have been put into effect by him.

We feel sure that our subscribers will assist us in our effort to abide by the Government's ruling by noting these requirements carefully and following out the suggestions offered.

NOTE:—The very first provision is: No publisher may continue subscriptions after date of expiration unless subscriptions are renewed and paid for.

Is Your Subscription in Arrears?

If it is, please arrange to make immediate renewal and help us fulfill our part of the requirements.
